ACADEMIC PROJECT EXPERIENCE

Scuba Pro Website

- Used HTML/HTML5, CSS/CSS3 and JavaScript to develop a prototype of a scuba diving website.
- Used Google Chrome/Mozilla Firefox debug tools to sort out issues and bugs.
- Created a mockup of the website in Adobe Photoshop CS6 before going into actual coding for the website.

Internet Programming

- Created website templates that can be used by bloggers and small businesses.
- Designed a form template that is easy to use that toggles between login and signup using JQuery.
- Created a JQuery gallery template using lightbox that can easily be implemented to any website.
- Used HTML/HTML5, CSS/CSS3, JavaScript, and JQuery for the development of the templates.

Mockup Website

- Created a full-sized model built to scale for Surf Shops using Photoshop CS6.
- The mockup website could be sent to a web designer who can program it into an actual website.
- Recently mockup websites are wanted by clients before they approve a project.

Rapid Absorption of New Languages

- Trained to be able to learn a new language in a week by analyzing developer sites and official language. Using books to locate solutions to the problems that arise. And also by finding Most Valuable Players (MVP) who have worked on the new language.

Adobe Illustrator

- Redesigned the CD cover of Continuum by John Mayer.
- Created posters in-class to be used by the College English Department for the plays called Urinetown and Laramie Project.
- Made unique designs of playing cards and beer label as an in class project.

Adobe Photoshop

- Manipulated images given in class weekly and transform it into something else using tools chosen by the instructor in Photoshop.
- Created a surreal image of myself for a class project
- Designed a Newsletter of a topic chosen by the instructor which was then imported to InDesign.

Adobe InDesign

- Designed a cookbook based on local recipes from Bhutan for a class project.
- Imported designs made in Photoshop and Illustrator and developed a portfolio.
- Designed birthday card and gift card along with the envelope.
